ALTITUDE AWARENESS DISCLOSURE

Has the camper attended the Colorado Lions Camp before? ______ Where are you coming from? ______ What is the elevation? ______ Are you aware of the risks of traveling to a higher altitude and elevation? ______ Has the camper experienced altitude sickness in the past?

Does the camper have any of the following pre-existing medical conditions? (Please check all that apply)

High Blood Pressure	Heart Disease	Emphysema
Arrhythmias	Congenital Heart Problems	Migraines
Heart Failure	Pulmonary Hypertension	Strokes
Asthma	COPD	Seizures
Other: Be Specific:

PLEASE READ AND INITIAL

PRE-EXISTING MEDICAL CONDITIONS AT ALTITUDE	INITIAL HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE: It is not uncommon for lowland visitors with a history of HBP to experience temporarily high blood pressure at high altitude. This occurs even if you are on blood pressure medication and have well controlled blood pressure at sea level. A small percentage of these people will have unusually unstable blood pressure. HBP at altitude usually returns to your baseline blood pressure after 1-2 weeks of altitude.
Some persons with HBP, however, develop lower blood pressure on ascent to high altitude. You generally do not need to change your blood pressure medication dosage. Increasing your dosage could result in dangerously low blood pressure upon returning to low altitude. If you are having symptoms from your high blood pressure such as headache, dizziness, chest pain, or shortness of breath, you should seek medical treatment. Persons with difficult-to-control blood pressure can use oxygen, especially at night, to avoid problems.
HEART DISEASE (Coronary Artery Disease): Altitude creates some stress on the heart, which is minimal at rest but can be significant during exercise. Reduce your exercise at high altitude to a bit less than you exercise at low altitude, especially the first few days. Stay on your regular medications. Spend an extra 1-2 days acclimating and avoid altitude sickness.
ARRHYTHMIAS: PVCs or premature ventricular contractions occur frequently at altitude. The heart throws an extra beat every so often and while they are quite harmless, they can be uncomfortable. Avoidance of caffeine may help. Many patients with irregular heart rhythms, such as supraventricular tachycardia (SVT), or atrial fibrillation (a-fib) travel safely to altitude every year. Irregular heart rhythms should be in good control before going to high altitude.
CONGENITAL HEART PROBLEMS: Persons born with heart problems such as ventricular septal defect (VSD), atrial septal defect (ASD), patent ductus arteriosus (PDA), or tetralogy of Fallot that is partially corrected may experience increased symptoms at altitude. These conditions may predispose to HAPE. As the blood pressure in the lungs rises, normal blood flow through the heart may get pushed through these holes in the heart in what is called right to left shunting. This potentially contributes to altitude symptoms as there is less blood getting loaded with oxygen in the lungs. Caution should be exercised when considering high altitude exposure in people with these issues. Use of oxygen at high altitude will prevent any problems.
HEART FAILURE: Heart failure (HF) has not been studied extensively at altitude. Persons with HF have increased sensitivity to fluid retention. Since retaining fluid at altitude occurs frequently with or without AMS, this could potentially cause a worsening of heart function. Patients with HF, if they are careful, can likely travel to moderate altitudes safely.

PRE EXISTING MEDICAL CONDITIONS AT ALTITUDE	INITIAL PULMONARY HYPERTENSION: This condition of high blood pressure in the lungs can occur from many causes. Since high blood pressure in the pulmonary vessels is a main mechanism that leads to HAPE, persons with pulmonary hypertension have a much higher risk of developing HAPE and need to consider this risk before coming to altitude. The risk should be discussed with the physician. One approach is to use supplemental oxygen during the altitude stay, which will alleviate concern for any problems.
ASTHMA: Persons with asthma do better at high altitude, contrary to some opinions. If one suffers allergic asthma, they do better at altitude than at sea level. As always, any asthmatic should continue their asthma medications and carry a relief inhaler with them at altitude just as they would at sea level or lower elevation.
COPD/EMPHYSEMA: Patients with chronic lung disease have difficulty transporting oxygen from their lungs to their bloodstream. Visiting moderate altitude for those with emphysema may be feasible. Testing blood oxygen levels at low altitude in these people may help give us a better picture of who will do okay at altitude. Those with emphysema who wish to visit high altitude should visit their doctor to optimize their condition and may want to consider additional oxygen while visiting high altitude. Oxygen at high altitude will help anyone with lung disease and is easily available.
MIGRAINES: Persons with migraine headaches are not at increased risk of altitude illness. IF a migraine develops at high altitude, however, it might be difficult to distinguish this from an altitude headache, although altitude headache does not have an aura and is not unilateral. A recent study suggests that low oxygen levels can trigger migraines. If you suffer from migraines, you should use your regular migraine medication at altitude if your headache seems like your typical migraine. If your medication is not effective, then you may need oxygen in addition to other treatments, as your headache may be due to AMS.
STROKE/TIA: Occasionally, stroke-like symptoms such as weakness on one side of the body or partial blindness have been reported in otherwise young healthy persons climbing at very high altitude. These symptoms resolve with oxygen or returning to lower altitude. If you or someone you know experiences these symptoms, you should seek medical treatment immediately. If you have had a prior stroke and you decide to go to altitude you should continue to take all your medications as directed by your doctor and consider limiting your activity at high altitude. Persons taking a blood thinner such as Coumadin or Plavix need to be careful to avoid trauma, because of the risk of increased bleeding when on the medications.
SEIZURES: Persons with seizure disorder well controlled on medications do well at high altitude, and it is generally considered safe to travel to altitude with epilepsy that is controlled with seizure medications. High altitude may unmask a seizure disorder in someone who has never had a previous seizure. In addition, the stress altitude, usually in combination with other factors such as cold, overexertion, lack of sleep, may cause a single seizure in persons without any type of seizure disorder. Persons who have been on seizure medication in the past but who have discontinued it might want to consider taking it again for a high-altitude trip, especially a longer trip or if going to a very high altitude.
